2014 West District President Report

October 25, 2013

The West District Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences met at the Meadowbrook Inn in Blowing Rock, the site of the 2014 state association and professional development conference. Eleven agents and three retirees were present. Local apples donated by Moretz's Orchard were served with a pumpkin dip and graham crackers. A tour of the facility was provided by the sales director. After the business session, members and retirees signed up for state planning committees. The entire group brainstormed about educational sessions. A delicious, hearty salad and chocolate chip cookies were served for lunch.

The West District Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences met at the Mountain Horticultural Crops Research and Extension Center in Mills River. Extension Agent Julie Sawyer greeted us with beautifully prepared morning snacks that included local trout. Our state association president, Molly Alexi, was present to help with us continue to plan our annual meeting and professional development conference. Loretta Shelton, Western NC Regional Director of Development was also present to learn about our organization and what we do in our communities. After the vice-president's reports were received, the group enjoyed a delicious lunch that was prepared by Extension Agent Sherrie Peeler. Reports were given by state meeting committee chairs.
